A CHARGE was made against Senator Ingalls, of Kansas, last spring, to the effect that he had bribed members of the Legislature and secured his election. A committee was appointed to investigate. They have been at it, but no prosecution appears, and there is absolutely nothing against Mr. Ingalls.

DR. J. B. McFERRIN, Agent for the Southern Methodist book concern, at Nashville, has labored for two years to relieve that establishment of a heavy debt. He has succeeded in getting subscriptions sufficient to accomplish that desirable end and believes they will be collected. Dr. Mc-Ferrin deserves well of his Church for this faithful and successful work.

A LITTLE thirty-ten sheet called the Commercial, published at Shelby-ville, Tennessee, talks glibly about the depths in which the WHIG AND CHRONICLE dwells. We know nothing of the editor personally and can only judge of what he is by the sheet he publishes. He is a loud-mouthed republican, and makes weekly appeals to debased passions which fillet human nature. If he has anything to say of us, we hope it will be abusive.
Were he to bestow words of praise or commendation upon our humble efforts, we would feel that we were on the wrong track. We will endeavor to still merit his commendation. It is the highest compliment he can pay us.

THE following is given by the Oakland Tribune as another reason why Kearney didn't follow out his programme of hanging Grant in effigy:
"Captain Jack Crawford, the poet about, is a great admirer of General Grant, as of all military men. When he heard of Kearney's threat to come and hang Grant, he was excited and went to Kearney's headquarters to interview the 'hero of St. Albans'. Not finding him there, Crawford thundered out the following message to Kearney's representative:
'Tell him that if he ever brings General Grant in effigy, or even attempts to perpetrate that indignity, I will make my individual business to kill him!'" Kearney changed his mind.

garet Manley and John D. Allen

The Opera House.

The Stewart Opera Troupe made its first appearance in the city last night in LeCocq's masterpiece, Girofle-Girofla. They were greeted with a fair crowd, but not so large as they deserved. Mr. Dexter as Marasquin acquired himself nobly. He has a powerful voice, clear as a bell, and with it a good stage presence. Mon-Nathal was the savage Mourzouk to the letter. He is a man of colossal size, and his acting was fine. He was suffering from terrible hoarseness, but showed well what he would have been if at himself. Mr. Knight was imitable in his portrayal of the weak, hen-pecked Don Bolero. The three form a trio not easily excelled.
In fact, the male members of the troupe seem to be superior to the female.

Mr. Eather Butler played the double part of Girofle Girofla in an acceptable manner. She has a remarkably sweet voice and appears to have trained it considerably. Her rendering of the famous Drinking Song was spirited, and was received with much applause.
The chorus was strong and well managed.

This afternoon, the "Bells of Corne-ville," that sweetest of all comic operas, will be put on the stage with Miss Butler as Germaine, Miss Adams as Gerpolette, Mr. Luard as Henri, Mr. Dexter as Grenichoux, and Mr.
Nathal as Jaspard.

To-night, the new world renowned "Pinafore," and is no less successful companion, "Trial by Jury," will be produced. In the former Miss Butler appears as Josephine, Miss LePrie as Little Buttercup, Miss Whitehead as Hebe, Mr. Luard as Sir Joseph Porter, Mr. Randolph as Capt. Corcoran, Mr.
Dexter as Ralph, and Mr. Knight as Dick Deadeye. A large crowd will be present, as everybody and "their slaves" are anxious to inspect the gallant ship, "Pinafore."

We Believe

That if every one would use Hop Bitters freely, there would be much less sickness and misery in the world; and people are fast finding this out, whole families keeping well at a trifling cost by its use. We advise all to try it.—U. & A. Rochester, New York.

An English View of American Politics.

The delegates at next year's Republican Convention will have no strong reason for preferring Sherman to Blaine, or either to Conkling; and they are not unlikely to feel that General Grant is more distinguishable from rival candidates than the rest.
The prejudice or tradition which was supposed to render impossible the re-election of a President for a third term of office has probably been weakened as the possibility that Grant might be nominated became more familiar. A President in whose favor the custom founded on the example of Washington was for the first time broken through would be rendered more powerful by his attainment of an unprecedented distinction. General Grant might perhaps, in a third term, no longer be inclined to divide his authority with the managers of the party in the Senate. The election of next year will excite more interest than the nomination of either party. The Democrats had probably a majority in 1876, and it is not known that they have become weaker.
It appears that they are practically unanimous in the election of a candidate. Mr. Tilden is exerting to the utmost his great powers of election management; and his adherents are gratified by learning that a successful speculation on the Stock Exchange has placed a sum of $200,000 at his disposal for the contest. Though there is no bribery at American elections, money is indispensable to the organization and conduct of parties; and if Mr. Tilden has money of his own to spare, he may perhaps compete with advantage against the Republican, who depend chiefly upon the percentage which they receive on the salaries of officeholders. The more formidable Tilden becomes, the more likely will be the selection of Grant as the strongest Republican candidate.—Saturday Review.

FRANK LESLIE'S POPULAR

MONTHLY FOR OCTOBER.

Joaquin Miller's New Novel of Western Life.

Among the many brilliant attractions of the present number is the commencement of a new novel, entitled, "Two Babes in the Woods," by the famous "Poet of the Sierras." The opening chapters give promise of a story of thrilling interest, characterized by vivid imagination, picturesque power of description and striking originality. No one is better acquainted than the author with our mountain life. "The Modern Paraclet" is an exceedingly interesting, elaborate article by Edwin De Leon, with reference to the new history of ancient and modern Egypt. It is profusely illustrated. There are admirable articles on "Archery, Past and Present," "Festivals in India," "Lisbon and Oporto," "Shooting Stars," etc., all finely illustrated.
There are stories, sketches, etc., by Jane G. Austin, Eliza W. Pierce, Amelia E.
Barr, and other popular writers; Poems by William Woodworth, Helen W. Pierson, etc., etc. The miscellaneous articles embrace a large variety of subjects, combining with entertainment a vast fund of information. The 128 quarto pages afford delightful reading, and the illustrations are fine works of art; they number nearly 100 besides a beautiful chromo frontpiece, "Jerome's Death of Caesar." Single copies are only 25 cents, and the annual subscription $3, postpaid. Address Frank Leslie's Publishing House, 68, 65, 67 Park Place, New York.

The State Fair Trick.

Detroit Free Press.

Soon after breakfast, yesterday morning a negro who was crossing the Campus Martius was halted by a rundown white man with a bad kink in his left eye, and asked if he intended to visit the State Fair during the week.

"Yes, sah—Ize gwine up dar at least four times," was the reply.

"Boy, are you up to snuff?" whispered the stranger.

"Well, sah, I knows a trick or two."
"Good—I thought you did. Now, then, I want 10 cents to get a drink, and I'll tell you how you can make your way through any of the gates without the least trouble?"

"Wouldn't I be cotched?"

"Not a bit of it. I'll warrant you to go through without a word, and I only want 10 cents for telling you how. I won't give it away to anybody but a sharp, keen man like you."

"Well, I'll take dat in," said the negro as he handed over a dime. "Now den, how kin I pass de gates?"

The white man put his mouth close to the other's ear and replied:
"Pay 'em 50 cents!"

It would have been a pretty even fight but an officer came along and squelched it in the blossom.
